Decision Aids for Advance Care Planning: Technical Brief Number 16

Advance care planning (ACP) can be thought about as a way to inform care choices when the patient cannot express a preference, but it is also a planning tool. Seriously ill patients' preferences regarding life-sustaining interventions depend on their goals for care. Some patients prioritize living longer to achieve life goals, while others may not wish to be kept alive when meaningful recovery or a particular quality of life is no longer possible. Religious and spiritual values and beliefs may also affect goals of care. Advance planning for future care helps to honor patient preferences and goals should incapacitating illness or injury prevent adequate communication. This Technical B
